TILDEN AND HENDRICKS.

Outlines of the Forthcoming Letters--Their Views on the Currency and Other Topics.

By American Press Association to the STAR.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The Herald's special from Saratoga says: Tilden left for home at noon yesterday, after conferring with Hendricks to prepare his letter of acceptance, which will be long and include answers to all accusations against him, giving what purports to be an outline of the letters of acceptance, although it states that neither have committed their views to paper.

The special says that on the financial question Tilden will speak very decidedly and fully, taking the view that resumption of specie payments would naturally and speedily follow such a change of administration as the country requires, without any specific action on the part of Congress. He believes the sum of $150,000,000 will be ample with which to commence the practical solution of the specie payment question. He characterizes the fixing of the 1st of January, 1879, as the date of resumption as a date of bad faith on the part of the Republicans and for the purpose of making a political issue, but that it would be naturally brought about by a revival of the industries and a reduction of the Governmental expenses. In order to provide a surplus fund in the Treasury upon which to base resumption, he favors a rigid reduction of expenses by abolishing useless offices, suspending unnecessary public works, reducing the annual expenditures on the harbor fortifications and army and navy, the stopping of extravagant outlays, and the abolishing of the system of fraud in public contracts. The general subject of reform will be enlarged upon in the letter, and Tilden will point out ways and means to effect it. He will favor the employment and retention of capable and honest officers in every department of the Government.

The condition of the South and the execution of the laws there and in other sections of the Union will receive due consideration. Tilden will favor the one term principle and probably suggest a Constitutional amendment to set at rest all discussion on that question.

Governor Hendricks is still at the Grand Union, and will remain till Tilden returns with his letter of acceptance, which will be ready probably by the middle of next week. There is unquestionable authority for stating that while Tilden and Hendricks hold different opinions upon some points of financial policy there will probably be no question between them on the vital issue.

They are both in accord upon the necessity of the resumption of specie payment as soon as the policy can be carried out without detriment to the interests of the country. Hendricks is waiting to see Tilden's views upon paper before he issues his own manifesto, and both documents will probably be published together. He says he has always held an evil to be remedied and avoided, and that it is of great importance that the currency of the country shall be of a uniform standard and convertible at the pleasure of the holder; but that he has not believed this could be brought about by an artificial contraction of the currency without great injury to the business interests of the country.

He believes with Tilden that a return to specie payments will be best accomplished by economy in public expenditures and official retrenchment, thorough reform in every department of the public service, and the re-establishment of confidence. He will also give expression to his views on the question of reform, including that of civil service, which he believes should be thorough. He will not touch on the one term principle, but will speak of the situation in the South, and will say that no man or party is true to the interests of the country that desires to promote antagonisms or animosities between the sections, and that the government should not be partisan, but within its constitutional power it should protect the rights of all. As to the question of the importation of Chinese into this country, he thinks it was for the party to speak frankly and fully, as it did in the platform. Hendricks is confident of the Democracy carrying Indiana in October and the country in November.

The World's.
Saratoga special says Governor Hendricks' letter is ready but will not be given to the public until Tilden's. Each letter favors reform, and a return to specie payment. Hendricks' letter will remove many of the points made by the Republicans against him. It will show that he is no inflationist, but favors the earliest possible return to specie payment. He favors one six-year term for President, with a provision making him ineligible thereafter, and he may include this in his letter. He condemns the antagonism of one section of the Union against the other. Both letters will be strong documents and positive in their terms.
